Finding Child Abuse Online

Public reports

We take public reports in the UK and from our 50 international portals.

Proactive

Our analysts proactively search all public areas of the internet including forums and the dark web; their experience and expertise means they know where criminal content is exchanged.

Operate 2 x Victim reporting services

Children can report to us, via Report Remove, an IWF & Childline partnership and the Meri Trustline which is a collaboration with the Rati Foundation, our project partners based in India.

National Child Abuse Image Database (CAID)

We continue to work with the Home Office to assess and hash (create digital fingerprint) millions of the worst child sexual abuse images found by UK law enforcement.

We use CAID daily to share images with UK police forces as well as supporting our victim identification work.

“Sextortion”

- Financially motivated sexually coerced extortion or ‘sextortion’ is a type of blackmail where offenders use intimate photos or videos of their victims to extort money from them.
- Financial Reward – Offenders target young people and adults alike. SWGfL @ RPH report a 47% increase in adults reaching out for support in extortion cases.
- The acquisition of images is a means to an end, not the primary goal.
- When shared online, the publication of the images signals the end stage of the extortion process.

“Sextortion”

- Sexually motivated Sextortion is a type of blackmail where offenders coerce victims into producing intimate and sexually explicit photos or videos of their victims.
- Sexual gratification – The production of more often increasingly extreme imagery - Children are the intended target.
- Images and coercion may be used facilitate contact abuse.
- Victim contact details may be ‘traded’ with other offenders and used in swaps as a form of human currency.
- The sharing of images online is not an indicator that the abuse process has ended.

$$$ Opportunity = Organised Crime

Low risk & Low barrier to entry

- International Organised Crime Hot-spot locations have been identified in West Africa, and Southeast Asia.
- Offenders adopt a ruthless approach to demanding payment from victims and parents of victims.
- A range of payment forms are promoted including Mobile payment Apps, Money Transfer, e-gift cards etc.
- Offenders typically engage with victims across several platforms using fake accounts and profiles which are designed to convince victims that the profiles are real because of the number of followers and other indicators suggesting a genuine profile.

It can be a matter of minutes between exchange of images and the demands for money.

Jordan DeMay, 17, killed himself after being blackmailed by a group of men overseas who posed as a woman on Instagram and coerced him into sending them nudes. The importance of disclosure and reporting

Depression, self-harm and suicide are all factors that have been associated with sextortion events.

Barriers to reporting

Victims may feel:

- Trapped by the inability to pay and the prospect of being exposed online
- They are to blame
- They won't be believed
- A sense of shame

Finding a way through

Block it, Report it, Hash it, Remove it!

Nude image of you online?
We can help take it down.

IWF & NSPCC developed Report Remove to support a young person in reporting their own sexual images or videos for removal from the internet.

The process is child-centred; does not identify them and ensures the child will not inadvertently be criminalised.

Rogue Support/ Content Removal Services

Security / Reputation Management firms and individuals have been identified by victims as compounding their abuse and anxiety.

Themes reported included:

- High pressure sales tactics to get victims to pay for offered removal services
- High fees for promised removal
- Over promise what is possible

Good quality conversations

One good quality conversation about online grooming and online sexual abuse can make all the difference to both parents/carers and children.

- It breaks down barriers to future conversations.
- Parents who'd already spoken to their children were more confident their child would speak to them if a problem arose.

Advice, guidance and support resources have been developed across LEA, NGO and Industry sectors.

Be proactive – leave the door open to make it easier for children to disclose if something goes wrong.

AI can undress pictures children upload

Reddit forum post from mother.

“It turns out that some of the boys from the year have found a website where an AI can undress pictures you upload. ...among other things, my daughter has been exposed to this, where a vacation photo of her in a bikini has been run through this AI and now a "nude photo" of my 14-year-old daughter abounds.

We have so far chosen to contact the police, who will call us later today, and we have blocked her Facebook photos from being seen by others. But it seems that a warning to all the rest of you is necessary. This AI undressing page is apparently completely free and only one of many...”

Prevention & Protection

Building resilience to the threat of online sexual abuse of children, thereby reducing the number of incidences.

1. To raise awareness of the risks to our children – understand the opportunities and risks that emerging Technology poses. Help them recognise the actions of offenders, feel empowered to block, report & tell someone they trust.
2. Inculcate respect and consideration for their peers.
3. Provide more positive actions for parents and carers to take to prevent their child becoming a victim of this these types of abuse.
4. Continued Multi-Stakeholder cooperation across Industry, Gov, Law Enforcement & Civill Society to produce practical, solutions to mitigate the challenges presented by a fast-paced digital landscape.
